CLIENT AGREEMENT

GreatBless Global Markets Ltd.

1. INTRODUCTION

This Client Agreement ("Agreement") is entered into between:

GreatBless Global Markets Ltd. ("Company", "we", "us") and the Client ("Client", "you").

By registering an account and using the Company's services, the Client agrees to be bound by this Agreement.

2. DEFINITIONS AND INTERPRETATION

Account means each trading account the Company maintains in the Client's name, identified by a unique account number (login). Where a provision refers to a specific account type (live, demo, or Swap-Free), it applies only to accounts of that type. The Client's wallet is not an Account. Transfers between the wallet and an Account, and any credit or bonus applied by the Company, are treated as deposits to or withdrawals from that Account as applicable — including when calculating Adjusted Start Equity under the Mandatory Daily Drawdown provisions.

AML means anti-money laundering, counter-terrorist financing, sanctions, and related financial-crime prevention requirements and procedures applicable to the Company, the Client, or the Account.

Applicable Law means any law, regulation, rule, order, sanctions measure, licence condition, or binding requirement of a court, regulator, or tax authority applying to the Company, the Client, an Account, or the Company's services, as amended or replaced from time to time. It includes anti-money laundering, counter-terrorist financing, sanctions, tax-reporting, and data-protection requirements, and the laws of the jurisdiction stated in the governing-law provisions of this Agreement.

Client Portal means the secure website, WebTrade interface, mobile interface, or other electronic interface approved by the Company through which the Client may access Account information, submit instructions, configure available features, or receive notices. The MetaTrader 5 terminal, and any other trading application through which the Client connects directly to the trading server using Account trading credentials issued by the Company, are not part of the Client Portal.

Company Policies means the policies, notices, and supplementary terms the Company publishes on its website or through the Client Portal and applies to the Client relationship, including the Order Execution Policy, the AML/KYC Policy, the Privacy Policy, the Risk Disclosure document, the Terms and Conditions, and any bonus or promotion terms, each as amended from time to time. Company Policies form part of this Agreement. Where a Company Policy conflicts with this Agreement, this Agreement prevails unless the policy expressly states otherwise.

Equity means the value reported for the Account by MT5 or the applicable Company system based on the Account balance together with unrealized profit or loss, credit, financing, commission, and other applicable adjustments.

KYC means know-your-customer checks, including the identity, address, beneficial-ownership, control, sanctions, politically exposed person, source-of-funds, source-of-wealth, and other verification or due-diligence checks required under the AML/KYC Policy, Applicable Law, or the Company's documented risk-based procedures.

Order means an instruction submitted through the Client Portal, MT5, or another Company-approved trading interface to open, modify, cancel, or close a trading transaction or position. An instruction is not an executed transaction merely because it has been submitted or received.

Trading Day means the daily period determined by the relevant MT5 server time for Account records, calculations, and applicable controls. It may differ from the calendar day in the Client's location.

The Company may monitor trading and Account activity to determine whether a Swap-Free Account is being used consistently with its disclosed purpose and the applicable Swap-Free Account conditions.

The following conduct may trigger a review but will not, by itself, constitute conclusive evidence of abuse:

- Systematically opening or maintaining positions primarily to obtain a financing or swap advantage unavailable on a standard Account.
- Coordinating hedged positions between Swap-Free and swap-bearing Accounts to capture or avoid financing charges.
- Using multiple Accounts or related persons to circumvent holding-period limits, administrative charges, or other disclosed Swap-Free conditions.
- Providing materially false or misleading information in the self-declaration.
- Deliberately structuring transactions to circumvent clearly disclosed Swap-Free Account restrictions.

A carry trade, extended holding period, hedging transaction, automated strategy, profitable transaction, or trading during a particular market condition will not automatically be classified as abuse. The Company will consider the overall trading pattern, Account history, economic effect, applicable terms, and available evidence.

27.3 Investigation and Client Response

Where the Company has reasonable grounds to suspect abuse, it may:

- Request an explanation or relevant Account information.
- Temporarily restrict new Swap-Free transactions where reasonably necessary.
- Preserve relevant trading, Account, communication, and audit records.

- Provide the Client with a general description of the suspected conduct where legally and operationally permitted.

Before taking a final adverse action, the Company will normally give the Client a reasonable opportunity to respond, except where immediate action is reasonably necessary for legal compliance, security, fraud prevention, or protection against continuing material loss.

The Company will document the material evidence, reason, calculation, and decision.

27.4 Consequences of Confirmed Abuse

Where the Company reasonably determines, based on documented evidence, that the Client materially misrepresented eligibility or deliberately abused the Swap-Free Account conditions, the Company may take one or more proportionate actions:

- Issue a warning or impose reasonable future conditions.
- Revoke Swap-Free status and convert the Account to a standard Account from a specified effective date.
- Apply a previously disclosed administrative or financing charge.
- Recover a directly attributable and objectively calculated benefit obtained through the confirmed abuse.
- Restrict affected trading activity.
- Suspend or terminate the Account in accordance with Section 19.

The Company will not cancel unrelated trading profits solely because the Account was profitable, positions were held for an extended period, or the Client used a carry trade, hedging, news-trading, scalping, or automated strategy.

A retroactive charge may be applied only where:

- The applicable charge and calculation method were clearly disclosed and accepted before the relevant trading activity.
- Material misrepresentation or deliberate circumvention is established by evidence.
- The charge is limited to the amount that would otherwise have applied.
- The Company provides the Client with a statement explaining the period and calculation.

27.5 Notice and Review

Where legally and operationally permitted, the Company will notify the Client of a final conversion, charge, adjustment, restriction, suspension, or termination and provide the general reason and effective date.

The Client may challenge the decision through the complaints procedure in Section 21.

28. AUTOMATED RISK MANAGEMENT AND PLATFORM CONTROLS

28.1 Scope

The Company may make risk-management features available for the Client to configure or may apply mandatory risk-management controls to an Account. These features and controls supplement the terms of this Agreement and form part of the trading conditions applicable to the Account.

28.2 Pre-Trade and Post-Trade Controls

Risk controls may operate before an Order is transmitted to MT5 or after an Order, position, price, funding event, equity update, or other Account event is recorded. Depending on the applicable rule, the Company may:

- Reject or delay a new Order or modification request.
- Cancel one or more pending Orders.
- Close or partially close one or more open positions.
- Prevent a Client-initiated modification or closure of a feature-protected position.
- Disable the Account's trading rights.
- Lock the Account until a specified time.
- Issue a warning, trigger, violation, or Account-status notification.

28.3 Interaction Between Controls

Margin and stop-out requirements, Mandatory Daily Drawdown, Trader Guard rules, Auto-Lock SL/TP, AML/KYC restrictions, security restrictions, and Company emergency actions operate independently. The first applicable control may act without waiting for another control. Company-enforced actions may override a Client-facing restriction where reasonably necessary to reduce exposure, comply with law, correct an error, or protect the trading environment.

28.4 Data and Timing Limitations

Automated controls rely on data received from MT5, market-data services, funding records, internal systems, and third-party providers. Data may be delayed, unavailable, corrected, or temporarily inconsistent. The Company does not guarantee that a control will operate at an exact time, price, equity value, or loss amount. Market gaps, slippage, liquidity, latency, simultaneous Orders, or system failure may cause a loss to exceed a configured limit.

28.5 Client Responsibility and Review

Risk controls are intended to support risk management but do not eliminate trading risk or replace the Client's responsibility to monitor the Account. The Client may request a technical review of an automated action through the complaints procedure in Section 21.

29. MANDATORY DAILY DRAWDOWN

29.1 Applicable Limit

Unless a different percentage is expressly displayed for the Account in the Client Portal, the standard Mandatory Daily Drawdown limit is ten percent (10%) for each MT5 Trading Day.

29.2 Calculation

The Company currently calculates the Mandatory Daily Drawdown substantially as follows:

Adjusted Start Equity = Start-of-Day Equity + Deposits Today - Withdrawals Today

Daily Drawdown Amount = the greater of (Adjusted Start Equity - Current Equity) or zero

Daily Drawdown Percentage = Daily Drawdown Amount divided by Adjusted Start Equity, multiplied by 100

Start-of-Day Equity is established from the Company's daily Account record. If the daily record is not yet available, the system may use a reasonable estimate derived from available Current Equity and same-day funding records and may reconcile the calculation when more authoritative data becomes available.

29.3 Trading Day and Funding Adjustments

The applicable Trading Day, start time, end time, and reset are determined by the relevant MT5 server time and may differ from the Client's local date and time. Deposits and withdrawals recorded during the Trading Day adjust the starting equity baseline in accordance with Section 29.2.

29.4 Action at the Limit

When the Daily Drawdown Percentage reaches or exceeds the applicable limit, the Company may, without requesting further confirmation from the Client:

- Cancel pending Orders.
- Close all or selected open positions using available market execution.
- Disable trading rights.
- Keep the Account locked until the end of the applicable MT5 Trading Day or until any other active restriction has ended.

29.5 Execution Risk

Cancellation, close-out, and trading-rights actions are not guaranteed to be simultaneous or successful on the first attempt. A pending Order may execute while cancellation is being processed, positions may close at different prices, and the Client's realized loss may exceed the applicable Daily Drawdown limit because of price movement, gaps, slippage, liquidity, latency, or technical failure.

29.6 Restoration of Trading Rights

Trading rights are normally restored after the relevant MT5 Trading Day ends, subject to system synchronization and provided that no other margin, Trader Guard, Auto-Lock SL/TP, compliance, security, investigation, or administrative restriction remains active.

30. TRADER GUARD RULES, SCENARIOS, AND COMMITMENTS

30.1 Availability

The Company may provide Trader Guard rules individually or through templates and scenarios. A rule may be selected by the Client or applied to the Account by the Company where disclosed in the Client Portal.

30.2 Types of Rules

Trader Guard rules may include:

- Maximum daily Orders
- Maximum Orders in the same instrument
- Maximum simultaneous Orders
- Permitted or blocked trading instruments
- Maximum lot size or volume by instrument
- Permitted equity ranges
- Maximum daily loss
- Daily or maximum equity drawdown
- Daily or maximum floating drawdown

- Maximum Account risk or profit, expressed as an amount or percentage
- Maximum Order risk or profit, expressed as an amount or percentage
- Blocked trading sessions
- Restrictions around identified high-impact economic events
- Daily or general consecutive-loss limits
- Cooldown periods following a loss

30.3 Rule Consequences

Depending on the rule displayed and accepted for the Account, a violation may cause an Order to be rejected, an affected Order or position to be closed, or the Account's trading rights to be temporarily disabled. The applicable calculation, threshold, consequence, time basis, effective period, and affected instruments will be displayed in the Client Portal.

30.4 Minimum Commitment Period

Unless the Client Portal expressly states otherwise, a newly activated Trader Guard rule, template, or scenario may be subject to a minimum commitment period of seven (7) days. During that period, the Client may not delete, disable, shorten, or weaken the commitment or use another Account or feature to circumvent it. The Client Portal will display the applicable effective-until date and time.

30.5 System-Level Emergency Controls

The Company may temporarily suspend, disable, or modify the operation or enforcement of the Trader Guard commitment-lock mechanism at a platform or system level where reasonably necessary to address:

- A legal or compliance requirement.
- A security incident.
- A material system or configuration error.
- A Client-protection concern.
- An operational emergency affecting the integrity or availability of the services.

A system-level action may affect multiple Accounts. It does not constitute or guarantee the availability of an early unlock, waiver, or removal of a Trader Guard commitment for a particular Client or Account. The Client has no contractual right to require an Account-specific override unless that functionality is expressly made available by the Company.

Administrative actions under this Section will be restricted to appropriately authorized personnel and will be subject to the access-control and audit procedures supported by the Company’s systems at the relevant time.

Audit records may include the action performed, timestamp, affected system or Account scope, administrator identifier, before-and-after values, and reason where those fields are captured by the relevant system. The Company does not warrant that every audit entry will contain a free-text reason or every listed metadata field, but will retain the records generated in the ordinary course of its systems and any records required by Applicable Law.

Where legally required, or where reasonably practicable after a system-level action has materially affected a Client’s Account, the Company may provide an appropriate notice. Advance or individualized notice is not guaranteed for an urgent or system-wide action unless required by Applicable Law.

The absence of a particular notification or audit metadata field does not, by itself, invalidate an otherwise authorized system-level action. This does not exclude any Client right or Company liability that cannot lawfully be excluded.

30.6 Rule Limitations

Trader Guard cannot guarantee that every Order will be blocked or that every position will be closed at the configured value. Economic-calendar classifications, market sessions, Account data, and prices may change or be delayed. Losses may therefore exceed the threshold selected by the Client.

Rules that operate by preventing an Order from being placed apply to Orders submitted through the Client Portal. Where the Client submits Orders directly to the trading server using MetaTrader 5 terminal credentials, such Orders may not be prevented, although consequences that operate after a position is opened — including closing positions and suspending trading on the Account — continue to apply.

31. AUTO-LOCK STOP LOSS AND TAKE PROFIT

31.1 Activation

Auto-Lock Stop Loss and Take Profit (Auto-Lock SL/TP) is optional unless the Client Portal expressly states otherwise for the Account. When the Client enables Auto-Lock SL/TP for an Order, the resulting position remains subject to this Section even if the Client later disables the feature for future Orders.

31.2 Accepted Preset

Before the Order is submitted, the Client Portal will display the applicable automatic Stop Loss amount, automatic Take Profit amount, calculation mode, and currency or percentage basis. The values displayed and accepted on the Order ticket govern the resulting position.

31.3 Initial Setting Period

After an Auto-Lock SL/TP position opens, the Client normally has approximately five (5) minutes to set any missing Stop Loss or Take Profit, subject to market and platform availability.

31.4 Automatic Setting

If a required level remains missing after the initial setting period, the Company may calculate and attempt to set the missing level using the accepted preset, the position's opening price, Account currency or balance where applicable, instrument contract data, minimum stop distance, and available MT5 information.

31.5 Automatic Close Where Stop Loss Is Already Breached

If the proposed automatic Stop Loss level has already been reached or passed, or cannot be validly placed without leaving the position exposed beyond the accepted condition, the Company may attempt to close the position at the available market price instead of placing that Stop Loss.

31.6 Separate Adjustment and Lock Times

Each Stop Loss and Take Profit leg normally remains adjustable for approximately five (5) minutes after it is set or materially completed. The Stop Loss and Take Profit legs may therefore have different lock times. At the end of the applicable adjustment period, that leg becomes locked.

31.7 Restriction After Both Legs Are Locked

Once both Stop Loss and Take Profit are locked:

- The Client may not modify the locked levels through the Client Portal.
- The Client may not manually close all or part of the protected position through the Client Portal.

- Company-enforced close-outs under margin, Mandatory Daily Drawdown, Trader Guard, compliance, security, or emergency controls remain permitted.

The Auto-Lock SL/TP close restriction applies to close instructions submitted through the Client Portal. It does not restrict the Client's ability to close a position using MetaTrader 5 terminal credentials issued by the Company, where such access is available to the Account.

31.8 Failure, Retry, and Price Risk

Automatic placement or close-out is not guaranteed. An attempt may be rejected, retried, delayed, or escalated because of market conditions, MT5 availability, invalid stop levels, price movement, liquidity, or another technical dependency. The execution price may differ from the calculated level and the loss may exceed the accepted preset amount.

31.9 Lock-State Unavailability

If the Company cannot verify the Auto-Lock SL/TP state, it may temporarily reject a Client-requested modification or close instruction rather than treat the protected position as unlocked. The Client may contact support and request a review of the lock record.

32. INTRODUCERS AND REFERRAL REMUNERATION

32.1 Introducing Arrangements

The Company may engage independent third parties, commonly referred to as Introducers or Introducing Brokers (“IBs”), to introduce prospective Clients and provide permitted marketing, educational, or administrative support.

The term “Introducing Broker” describes the referral arrangement only and does not represent that the IB is a licensed broker-dealer, investment adviser, employee, or authorized representative of the Company.

32.2 IB Remuneration

The Company may pay an IB a fixed referral fee or remuneration calculated by reference to:

- The Client’s registration or Account activation.
- The Client’s trading volume or number of lots traded.
- Spreads, commissions, or other trading revenue generated by the referred Account.
- Another method disclosed in the applicable IB arrangement.

Such remuneration may be paid from the Company’s revenue, including revenue derived from spreads or commissions charged to the referred Client.

The Client will not be charged a separate additional fee solely because the Client was introduced by an IB unless that fee and its calculation method were disclosed to and accepted by the Client before it applied.

32.3 Conflict of Interest

An IB may have a financial interest in the Client opening an Account, depositing funds, or trading more frequently or in greater volume. This creates a potential conflict of interest.

The Client must make each Account, funding, and trading decision independently and should not trade merely to generate remuneration for an IB.

IB remuneration does not change the Company's obligations under this Agreement, the Order Execution Policy, or Applicable Law.

32.4 Limits on IB Authority

Unless expressly authorized by the Company in writing, an IB has no authority to:

- Accept or hold Client funds.
- Receive passwords, authentication codes, or security credentials.
- Place, modify, or close Orders for the Client.
- Manage the Client's Account.
- Provide personalized investment advice or guarantee returns.
- Modify this Agreement, fees, trading conditions, or Company Policies.
- Approve an Account, deposit, withdrawal, bonus, or complaint.
- Make any commitment that legally binds the Company.

The Client must make deposits and withdrawals only through payment channels officially approved by the Company.

32.5 Disclosure and Complaints

The Company will maintain reasonable due diligence, contractual, monitoring, and complaint procedures for its IB relationships.

The Client may request information about the identity of the IB associated with the Account and the general nature of the remuneration arrangement, subject to confidentiality and Applicable Law.

Suspected misconduct, misleading statements, unauthorized Account management, requests for money or credentials, or undisclosed fees must be reported through the Company's official complaints procedure.

33. FINAL PROVISIONS

33.1 Binding Effect

This Agreement constitutes a legally binding agreement between the Company and the Client.

33.2 Severability

If any provision of this Agreement is found to be invalid, unlawful, or unenforceable:

- Such provision shall be modified or removed to the extent necessary
- The remaining provisions shall remain in full force and effect

33.3 Entire Agreement

This Agreement, together with the Company Policies, constitutes the entire agreement between the Company and the Client in respect of its subject matter and supersedes any prior representation, understanding, or arrangement.

Company Policies are published on the Company's website or through the Client Portal and may be amended from time to time. Where a Company Policy is inconsistent with this Agreement, this Agreement prevails, unless that policy expressly states that it prevails on the matter concerned.

33.4 Preservation of Client Rights

Where this Agreement states that a decision of the Company is final and binding, that statement refers to the conclusion of the Company's internal process. It does not exclude the Client's right to raise a complaint under Section 21, or any right or remedy available to the Client under Applicable Law that cannot lawfully be excluded.
